356 Mission Needs Help with 590 Dots (<http://www.glasstire.com/socal/2014/10/01/356-mission-needs-help-with-590-dots/>)

October 1st, 2014 – KEITH PLOCEK (HTTP://WWW.GLASSTIRE.COM/SOCAL/AUTHOR/KEITH-PLOCEK/)

Large-scale works, such as those of Christo and Jeanne-Claude (R.I.P.), often require hundreds of helpers, laboring away for love and minimum wage (<http://www.blacktable.com/plocek050210.htm>). Such is the price of collaborative art.

Kudos to 356 Mission (<http://356mission.com/>) for increasing the pay scale this month for anyone who wants to participate in Jonathan Horowitz's 590 Dots

(<http://356mission.tumblr.com/post/97911261835/jonathan-horowitz-590-dots>), a monumental painting project that needs 590 helpers. Stop by the space during regular hours and you can make $20 for 30 to 60 minutes of collaboration. Factor that out over 40 hours a week, and you'd be making $80K a year, player.

We reached out to 356 Mission for more information.

"Once participants arrive, they are given a specific set of parameters," says gallery director Ethan Swan. "We really stress that everyone has to do their best job, but that we also understand it as an impossible task. Ultimately, participation should be a relaxing, almost zen-like experience. For some people it produces a lot of anxiety but that's interesting too, I think."

Zen or anxiety? Which will it be for you? Regardless, be sure to wear clothes for painting.

The call for participation is open until October 25, but you might want to head there sooner than later, lest you become that 591st dot.

356 Mission is located at 356 South Mission Road, just across the L.A. River from downtown. The space is open 11 a.m. to 6 p.m., Wednesday through Sunday.
